Question 5 In the case where we move to a new building, I expect TD to perform better than monte carlo learning.

Since TD performs an update at every step, and only the first step seems to have changed (starting building) with most of the rest of the episode similar to the older case, TD learning would work better. This a is also because we already have a lot of previous driving experience as well. Just like dynamic programming, TD bootstraps as well.